me's Wisdom In Advising the Farm ers to Cultivate Fruit.

A few years ago, when Mr. Glad-stone, in one of his charming bucolic orations at Hawarden, recommended the fruit cultivation and the making of jam, his advice was received with a good usual, the ex-premier has proved a good deal wiser than his critics, and those who gave ear to his connsel in this instance have had no reason to regret their confidence. In an interview a famous provider says:

up the jam trade was my knowledge of the fact that within late years the de-mand for preserves had been steadily in-creasing, while that for butter has, no doubt in consequence, shown a tendency rather to decline than otherwise. "Jam has a great future before it.

The people are using it more and more largely every year, and, in my opinion, they are doing wisely, for what could be cheaper and at the same time health-ier than a good jam made from sound English fruit?

"I attribute the superiority of E lish fruit to the nature of the soil and to the fact that the fruit ripens more gradually in our climate than in coun tries where there is more continuous and powerful sunshine. The slower the ripening process the better is the flavor of strawberries grown in the northern parts of Scotland are vastly superior in all respects to those grown in southern Eng-land, without doubt because they take longer to mature. Australian jams are being pushed largely in India and elsewhere and may very probably come over here before long to compete with single harness. WELL-KNOWN PEOPLE

PROMINENT PERSONAGES FROM FAR AND NEAR.

People Who Have Gained Distinction in Their Particular Sphere in Life, Both in This Country and Abroad-Prince Constantine.

The government of Greece is passing through a political crisis, and, as is the case in other countries, the financial question is the one causing the agitation. Finding the ministry in disfavor with the people and anticipating its dismissal by the king, the premier, M. Tricoupis, tendered his resignation of the premier-ship. This movement was probably hastened by the action of the crown hastened by the action of the crown prince, who showed the sympathy of the royal family with the people by appearing at a public meeting at Athens held for the purpose of protesting against increased taxation proposed by the ministry, and assuring the assembly that his heart was with them. Prince Constantine is the oldest son of King George I. and Queen Olga, and was married October 20, 1889, to the Princess Sophie of Prussia, who is the sunt of the Emperor of Germany.

Prince Valiravadh. Owing to the recent death of Prince Vajirunhis, heir apparent to the Siamese throne, his successor in the person of Chaw Fa Maha Vajiravadh has been proclaimed crown prince. He is the second queen's eldest son, and is the oldest surviving child of Chulalongkorn I., the reigning king. He is now 15 years of age, having been born January 1, 1880, at Bankok. The king of Siam has full discretionary power to nominate his successor, but not until 1887 was the custom of proclaiming a crown prince introduced. The new prince is being educated at Eton.

John W. Foster, formerly secretary of state, has been employed to aid the Chinese government's plenipotentiaries in peace negotiations. John W. Foster represented this country abroad in various countries for twenty-five years. When minister to Mexico and Spain and special envoy to several European countries he was of the greatest service countries he was of the greatest service in making treaties. He is probably the best posted man in the country in diplomacy and international law. He served in the union army in an Indiana regiment, and afterwards was prominent in state politics. He is a thorough scholar and master of several foreign languages. Mr. Foster has lately returned from a trip around the world, during which he spent some time in China.

Ras Mangascia.

In the hostilities between the Italian on the east coast of Africa and the Abyssinian Chief of Tigre, the forces of the latter are led by Ras Mangascia, who is the son of the late Negus John, who in

After his father's death he became a pretender for the Ethiopian throne, but owing to the assistance given by the Italians to his consin, Menalik, was compelled to give up his candidature. He retired to Tigre, made peace with the king, and received in exchange for his submission the vice royalty of the province. He is an able administrator and a valiant soldier, but while he has maintained a show of courtesy to the Italians, he has never forgiven their interferences.

Grand Opera Under Difficulties. The hushing down of applause during the progress of a Wagnerian opera appeared rather to disconcert Mr. Lassalle, who, on making his first appearance this season in "The Flying Dutchman" at Covent Garden last week, was received absolutely without a hand. Between the acts, however, he was accorded as much applause as he could have desired. The applause as he could have desired. The performance of "The Flying Dutchman" must have been considered a strange one by any members of the Wagner party who may have been present. Some of the artists, in accordance with Italian precedent, sang to the footlights instead of to each other, the band, conducted by the Italian Mr. Mancinelli, went at it with vigor, the drummer particularly making a night of it, while the hitches very laughable.

To see several men walking in the trough of the sea pulling along the gigantic phantom ship of the Dutchman, calling to each other "Get on!" and "Whoa!" as the vessel from time to time struck on a rock, was amusing enough. Mild wagers were laid that the Flying Dutchman would never get to land at all, and indeed Mr. Mancinelli laid down his baton and stopped his band while the ship was being maneuvered. It was not the fault of Mr. Lassalle, for he clearly could not be expected to walk the waves. In the last act, too, the ship absolutely refused to smash up, and it was left still swimming the ocean when the curtain finally fell.-London Figuro.

The authorities have striven in vain to prolong their lives by varying their food as much as possible, but those who are moderately or lightly nourished gradually waste away, while those who are generously fed go mad and die raving maniacs.
